

MASTERPIECE CAKESHOP

The Dangerous Right-to-Discriminate Case

THE LEGAL CLAIM:

The U.S. Supreme Court is considering Masterpiece Cakeshop's claim that Colorado's nondiscrimination laws should not apply to them because serving same-sex couples violates their right to freedom of speech and religion.

A LOSS IN THIS CASE COULD SHATTER OUR NONDISCRIMINATION LAWS AND RESULT IN:

MORE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

If a business or service provider is exempted from following nondiscrimination laws simply because their service has a creative element, many could claim a right to discriminate:

WE DON'T SERVE YOUR KIND

- Restaurants
- School counselors
- Florists
- Hair salon or barber shop
- Tailors
- Picture-Framers
- Architects
- ... and more

MORE TYPES OF PEOPLE FACING DISCRIMINATION

Nondiscrimination laws ban discrimination against many different types of people. If businesses no longer need to follow these laws, they will not just be able to discriminate against gay customers but also against customers based on:

- Race or ethnicity
- Religion
- Sex
- Disability
- National origin
- ... and more
